

FORESTRY IN GREAT BRITAIN

Above: Felling a spruce for paper pulp in Dovey Forest, Merioneth, North Wales.

Cover picture: Beechwoods in Savernake Forest, Wiltshire, South West England.

The River Conon at Torrachilty Forest, Ross-shire, North Scotland.

Native pinewoods beside Loch Affric, Glen Affric Forest, Inverness-shire, North Scotland.

Young plantations beside Esthwaite Water, Lancashire, in the Lake District of North West England.

Gwydyr Forest and the Conway Valley in the Snowdonia Forest Park, North Wales.

Student foresters practising timber measurement beside the loch, Faskally Forest, Perthshire, East Scotland.

Timber houses for Forest Workers at Glenbranter, Argyll Forest Park, West Scotland.

Dragging poles from a thinning in sprucewoods at Lake Vyrnwy, Montgomeryshire, North Wales.

Camping in the Glen Trool Forest Park, Kirkcudbrightshire, South Scotland.

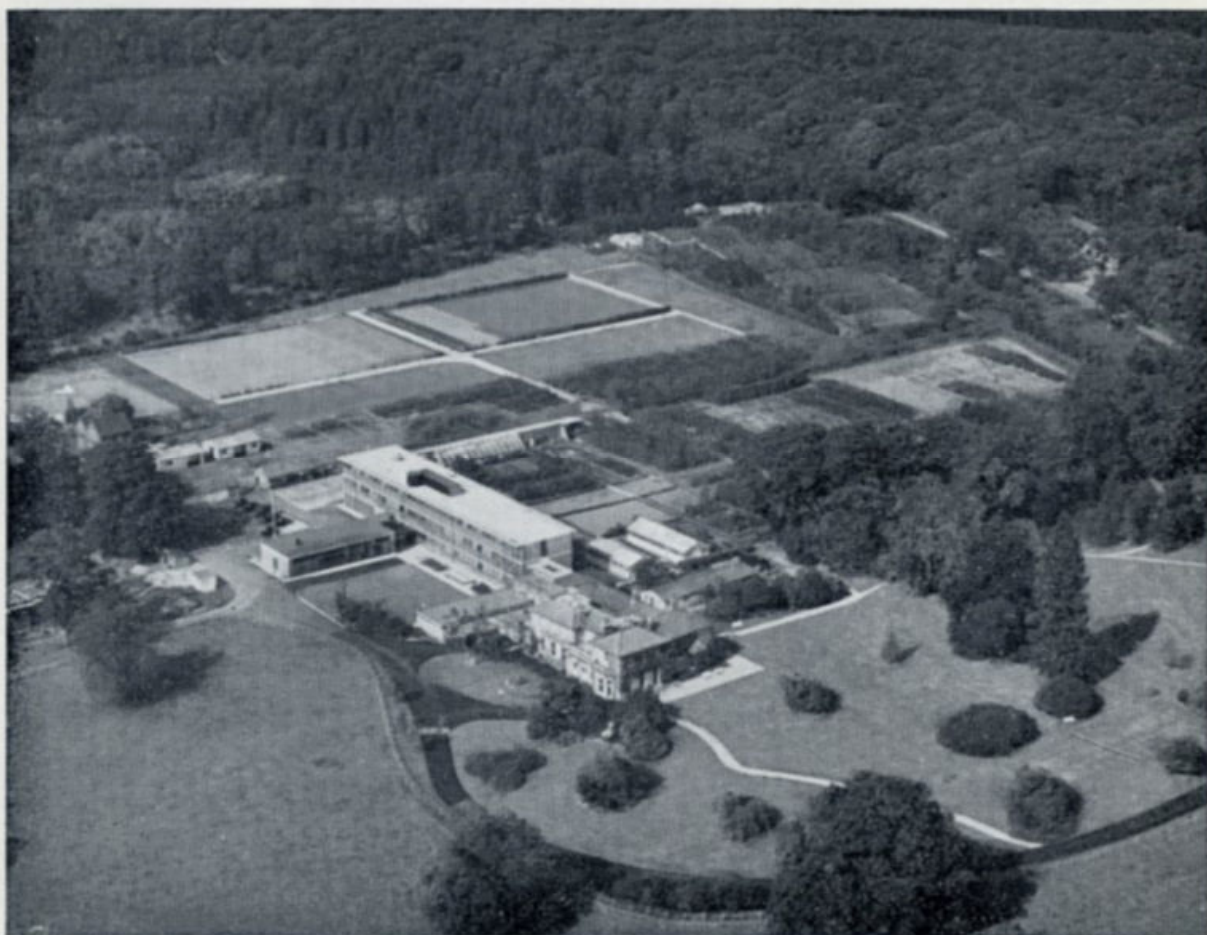

Spraying pinewoods from the air to control the Pine looper moth (Bupalus piniarius) at Culbin Forest, Morayshire, East Scotland.

Planting trees on the hillsides above Loch Awe, Inverliever Forest, Argyll, West Scotland.

Sprucewoods in Kielder Forest, Northumberland, North East England.

Forestry Commission Research Station at Alice Holt Forest in Hampshire, South East England.

Above: Sitka spruce plantations, Bodmin Forest, Cornwall, South West England.

Back cover: Coed y Brenin Forest and National Trust woodlands in the Ganllwyd Valley, Merioneth, North Wales.

