

HABITATS AND THEIR FORMATION

The geological structure of the landscape and the forces of erosion have helped to create an environment in which there are a number of different habitats. Each habitat has its own soils and moisture levels and its own micro-climate. Plants and animals have adapted to these different sets of environmental conditions and therefore tend to be found in particular habitats.

THE PARIGARD GORGE

CONSERVATION IN ### GOING BATTY!

Conservation in the Parigard Gorge is a vital part of the area's management. The area is home to a number of rare and endangered species, and it is important to ensure that these are protected and conserved for future generations.
